John E. Swain, head of the boys and girls clubs of the state, C. W. Callahan, district agricultural agent, and J. B. Hill, county farm demonstrator, went to Center last night to discuss with the citizens the organization of an association for the general development of the community. This is a new movement just inaugurated by the Agricultural and Mechanical College and the United States Department of Agriculture.

There were about one hundred citizens of Center and surrounding country present, and they voted unanimously to enter into such an organization. Some week in January, the time yet to be appointed, a week of lectures, demonstrations and experiments will be held. During this week an expert from the Department of Agriculture will be present each day. As an example, on Monday night, say, there will be an expert on hog diseases. He will lecture on

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEN TO LUNCH TUESDAY

The Chamber of Commerce will lunch at Mrs. Land's Lunch Room next Tuesday at 1 o'clock. Only a limited number of plates will be provided, and the first ones to apply for a ticket will be those fortunate enough to get in. The price of the luncheon will be 60 cents. Tickets may be obtained from Secretary O. N. Walker at the office of the County Council of Defense. This is the first of a series of luncheons to be enjoyed by members of the Chamber of Commerce which are expected to do much in bringing about a closer co-operation and mutual helpfulness.

Baptist Sunday school Offering.
Let me again to the pupils of the Baptist Sunday school that next Sunday is the time to make the State Mission offering. Every pupil will be glad to have a part in this worthy cause.

There are 474 Baptist Sunday schools in the state with an enrollment of 47,211 pupils. Our Sunday school has about 250 students. Why not have everybody out next Sunday with an offering?

The Board of Directors of the Baptist General Convention of Oklahoma has 205 missionaries at work. Last year they organized 159 new Sunday schools with hundreds of pupils. Do you believe in this work? If you do, bring your offering next Sunday to help pay the salaries of these workers.—Bonnie Grimes.

To find out if they have been cooked alive, lobsters should be examined very carefully. If their tails are tightly curled to their bodies it is reasonably certain that they were properly cooked.

It has been estimated that by mid summer there were close to 4,000,000 automobiles on the road in this country alone, and that $3,000,000,000 will be spent during the year in sustaining them.

AMERICAN FLYING FIELD IN FRANCE

American Aviation Center, Issoudun, France, Sept. 12. (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—This American flying camp is the largest in France and is said to be greater than any other in the world.

A flying field of 36 square miles, the area of an American county, with nine separate flying fields on which American aviators advance to the stage of flight combatants, and air-planes—Liberties, Nieuports, Caprons and all the others with officers; instructors and newly equipped aviators swelling our squadrons each month—these were some of the main features of this vast aviation ground.

As The Associated Press correspondent entered one of the fields a big gray machine rose from a nearby field with a loud droning noise.

"There goes a Liberty airplane," said one of the officers. It was one of the fast-increasing number now coming, and every flight was watched with keenest interest and growing enthusiasm by those who will put it to the supreme test on the fighting front. Only one opinion was heard among these men, that it was the biggest and fastest machine of them all. It was doing wonders in quick ascent, and besides straight-away flight it had been put through all the intricacies of acrobatic flight and had been pronounced equal to the whole range.

Groups of aviators were lined up as we arrived, preparatory to taking the air. They were lithe, stocky, young men, like two football elevens about to take the field. The flying grounds stretched off for miles—nine fields of four square miles each—all clean-cut stubble fields on which the machines could light without shock. Above them circled countless planes, singly and in squadrons drawn out like wild geese, looping and diving and in all the evolutions of flight, with groups of acrobatic planes over to the right making headlong spirals wing-slips and reversements.

In the foreground rose a city of barracks, one-story pine shacks 100 feet long, not very highly ornamental but very practical. Fully a thousand of these barracks had risen on this level plain to house the army of flying men on the way to the fighting line.

We went from field to field to note each stage in the development of combat aviators. Generally speaking, it was explained, there are three distinct branches of this aviation for warfare: Chase and combat work in which most of the fighting occurs, bombardment of enemy forces, camps and towns, and scouting or reconnaissance work for purposes of observation of enemy activities. It is for combat and bombardment that the training is done here, and of those going forward monthly about four-fifths are combatants and one-fifth bombardment pilots.

These are the "grasshoppers," said the captain as we came to Field No. 1, where the initial ground work and theory of flight begins. The grasshoppers were diminutive machines with just enough horse-power to jump over the ground, and occasionally rise ten feet. The men call them taxis and rouliers. They were skipping about singly and in squads. Two were having a race across the plain, and one taking a dive buried its nose in the ground. This was the circus part of flying, at the start, but there was plenty of very practical work beside, with motor instruction, gunnery, trap shooting, rifle range and machine-gun firing. Small dummy airplanes dotted the field as targets, and the bounding grasshoppers took their shots and were rated by the watching instructors.

On the second field the aviators had left their grasshoppers and were in a double-control machine accompanied by an instructor. They were getting the "feel" of the machine in actual flight, and if the rudder was not manipulated deftly the instructor was here to make the correction. And it was necessary here to learn how to come down as well as to go up, and to come down at a definite point. Small numbered flags marked the landing point of each machine, and the descent must be made close up to this flag.

The captain of field No. 3 was about to step into the "Flying Dragon," one of the most curious machines of the fleet, for besides being a very fleet 15-meter car, it was famous for its dragon body, with flaming scales and tentacles and great red eyes. Here on this field the aviators entered single-control machines, without an instructor, and for the first time took their own risks.

On Field 4 it began to develop whether the aviator could qualify as a combat aviator, or for bombardment or scout observation. He was now in a fast machine with a wingspan of 18 meters and was beginning to make dips and high air manoeuvring. He was being accustomed to all types of machines. There was a fleet of one of these strange types drawn across the plain. Their chief novelty was in having ball-bearings on all their mechanism, giving a hair-trigger response to the slightest touch.

"If you sneeze, you loop the loop" was the way the officer explained the delicacy of this mechanism.

Progress is rapid now that it is evident what a flyer can do. He enters a very fast machine at No. 5, with 15-meter wings capable of making 120 miles an hour. Some of the men drop out of the training at this point, as it has become evident that they lack the deftness or get faint at the height or the heat of the motor. The rest go on to Field No. 6 where they begin pursuit work and some of the early stages of acrobatic nose dives and slips.

"There is nothing freakish about these acrobatics," said the officer "for they are one of the most essential parts of combat aviation. To be in a chase and pursuit pilot one must be able to out-maneuver the enemy aviator; to make quick turns under fire and get above your adversary or on his tail. One or the other will be out maneuvered, and the fastest man wins the game. The enemy is very skillful at acrobatics, and he must be beaten at his own game."

Lieut. Quentin Roosevelt was in command of Field No. 7 while he was here, and the car of the late officer stood in the hangar with a group of flyers about it paying tribute to the splendid qualities and daring of their leader. His good humor was recalled by the name he had given his car, "Doe Yak," and the doctor with his flowing whiskers was painted in flaming colors on the side of the car.

This is the field on which formation flying is begun, in squadrons up to 18 machines but usually with five. The squadron flies in V-shape, with the commander at the apex of the V, carrying a streamer which signals the commands. A fleet of 15 machines was starting as we passed, and another had just come after two hours in the air, ending with a figure eight, a difficult evolution executed by crossing the controls so that the rudder serves as elevator and the elevator serves as rudder. At night this field is lighted by powerful searchlights, and night flying goes on from 10 o'clock until daylight.

On the combat and acrobatic fields, Nos. 8 and 9, scores of machines were in the air going through their fighting evolutions or dipping and looping. The combat airplanes carried camera guns, a novel device combining, a dummy machine gun and a photographic camera. It looks like a gun, but as the trigger is pulled, the camera takes a picture of the target, showing just what would have been hit if a shot instead of a lens had blazed ahead.

It was over the acrobatic field that the real wonders were going on, in the vertical virage, spirals and wing-slips. Spectacular as these seemed to be, each had its use in the fighting game. The "vrille" is the dizzy head-first tumble, and the chief thing is not to do it but to undo it and come out of it. It has its uses too in deceiving an enemy into the belief that the aviator has been hit and is tumbling, then as the enemy is on guard, attacking him suddenly as the aviator comes out of his headlong dive. One of the flyers made four vrilles as we watched.

"It is dangerous only when near the ground," said the escort. "High in the air there is comparatively no danger for there is plenty of time to set your levers so that you're sure to come out of the vrille."

Others were doing the spiral, another form of head-first dive except that the car is always under control whereas in the vrille the control is lost until the aviator succeeds in emerging from his fall. Often the machines seemed to stop suddenly, turn over and then glide away in the opposite direction right side up.

One of the best maneuvers for escape from a dangerous fight is the vertical wing-dip, as it is the fastest means of losing altitude and getting below an unequal combat. When an acrobatic maneuver misses or is badly done it is a "pancake" or a "barrel." There is as much lingo to the aviation field as there is to the baseball diamond.

Leaving the field we passed a crippled aviator limping on crutches.

"He has had 21 crashes," said the officer "which is about the record. But he goes back every time and he's eager now to get in his machine again. And that is the spirit of every man here, to be ready for combat and to beat the Boche."

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

If there was ever a time when Ada needed a Chamber of Commerce, that time is now. Already the signs of a booming Ada are evident. The cement plant will begin operations again in a few days. The big crusher at Lawrence will soon be operated in full force. The glass factory, now that steel will not be required to knock the life out of the Huns, will be able to acquire the rest of the needed equipment and car loads of glassware will leave Ada daily. The foundry will be enlarged and shipments will cover the southeastern part of the state. The normal school will double its enrollment, for higher education is more in demand than ever before in the world's history. Smaller industries will be looking for locations. The fact that Ada has gas, water, ideal climate, and favorable seasons will attract them to this city. The men and women of the city must be alive if we expect to land the industries. Organized effort is the only way to accomplish these things, and organized effort means a Chamber of Commerce.

One of the first duties of the Chamber of Commerce, as well as the citizens of the entire county, is to get some good roads through this country. Railroads are important, but much of the passenger traffic of the future and probably much of the freight will be carried by motor. The town and the county with good roads will be benefited first. Already a start has been made, but there ought to be at least two or three trunk lines of highways running through this county and covered with some hard substance, like cement or asphalt.

The time for action has come. Time for procrastination has past. We must be up and doing. As one man, let us get behind the Chamber of Commerce and push the load over the hill.

The Chamber of Commerce begins a new fiscal year with a great work ahead of it. As times become normal there will be the greatest scramble on record among towns not only to regain their old positions, but to spread out and take advantage of the wave of prosperity which will sweep the nation when reconstruction begins and Europe draws on this country for everything needed. Ada must be alert and push her interests as never before and only through organized effort, such as represented by the Chamber of Commerce can this be done. It is a duty every citizen owes the city to become a member and help push the city to the front. All are benefited by every improvement and all should share in the work.

PROBLEMS CONFRONTING THE RURAL SCHOOLS

SOME REASONS WHY COUNTRY SCHOOLS ARE NOT AS GOOD AS TOWN SCHOOLS

First.—The average of the schools in the country in this county is seven and one-half months, while the average of the town caahool is nine months. This gives the children one and one-half months the advantage.

Second.—In the town schools we have employed one teacher to every forty-seven pupils of scholastic population, and in the country we have one teacher to every sixty-three pupils of scholastic population. In addition to this, we have one grade to each teacher in the town, while in the country the average is four grades of sixty-three pupils to each teacher. This would be equivalent to one grade of two hundred and fifty pupils. Then the comparison of the work of the two, the country teacher has the work of two hundred and fifty two, while the town teacher has the work of forty-three. The only way to remedy this is by consolidation of schools, thereby lessening the number of grades to handle by the country teacher. Then this would enable the teachers of the country to be more proficient in her work and to give her pupils more individual attention, which is much needed in our school work. Consolidation is impractical in certain parts of the county, but in the greater portion of the county it is not impractical. However, I will discuss the consolidation of schools later.

Third.—The cost of the buildings and equipment of the town schools of this county is $225,000. The cost and equipment of the country schools is $125,000. This would be an average investment to each pupil in the towns of $56, and in the country an average investment of $21, hence the sanitary conditions and comforts of the children are much better guarded in town than in the country. The cost, as shown in the estimates of the schools, if the town schools for this year is $105,496; in the country it is $81,076, which gives a cost of $25.62 per pupil in the town and $12.06 in the country. To raise this amount it requires an average of fourteen mills in the town, while after deducting the Federal Aid, nine mills in the country. So we gather from these figures that the service rendered is in proportion to what you pay.

It has been thoroughly demonstrated in this county by a few districts that the country can have just as sanitary, one, two, three or four teacher's school houses, and just as modern in all of its improvements and equipments as the town. The only question is are you willing to pay the price for these things, which will enable you to get the service?

Fourth.—We have some as good teachers in the country school as in the town, but generally speaking, the boards in the towns are much more cautious in the selection of teachers than those in the country. In the town schools of this county all of the teachers have had experience or special training in their line of work, and have a first grade certificate or Normal diploma. All experienced teachers, third and second grade teachers are in the country. Here is where we need our strongest and best teachers from the simple fact they do not have the aid of close supervision like those of the towns.

In conclusion, after taking into consideration the total cost of our schools for this year, which is $191,783, not including the sinking fund and interest we pay on the buildings, which is a large amount, I want to urge upon you as patrons and friends interested in the education of your children, and citizenship of your country, to study these facts and conditions as we find them, and to cooperate together in making our schools better from every viewpoint. Much improvement has been made in the last year for which we feel thankful and grateful, but there is still much room for improvement.

Respectfully,

A. FLOYD,
County Superintendent.

President Gordon has asked Miss Gilbert, of Dallas, for further facts with reference to Madame Bernard, who is to speak at the Normal tomorrow at 1 o'clock. Miss Gilbert gives the following facts:

Madame Bernard is a French woman—born in England, has lived most of her life in France and European countries. She spent several years in India. Her husband, who was a French officer and scholar, came into close relationship with the high class Hindu. On their return to France Madame Bernard and her husband took two children of the Hindu governor to Paris to educate them, and were able to keep them there for two years. Since the children's return to India, Madame Bernard has been asked to become one of the faculty in a high class Hindu college.

Madame Bernard's husband was killed during the first three weeks of the war. All the men of her family are in the war and she herself has been most closely connected with the Red Cross, Y. W. C. A., and Fatherless Children of France Association.

She is a deep thinker on international problems presented by the war.

Madame Bernard is in the United States as the guest of the National Y. W. C. A., and will remain here as their guest for some months.

Miss Gilbert adds that all who have heard Madame Bernard, speak of her in the most glowing terms.

The public is cordially invited to attend the lecture.

BOLSHEVIK RULE WOO & BRIGADE OF TERROR

DON'T LET A COLD
KEEP YOU AT HOME

Dr. King's New Discovery
never fails to bring quick relief.

ARCHANGEL, Oct. 22.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—Russia is fast bleeding to death through a reign of terror which is worse than that of the French Revolution, and it is time the nations of the earth come here to put down one of the world's greatest evils," President Nicholas Tschaiikovsky of the Provisional Government of the North told a correspondent of the Associated Press today.

"It is no longer a question of politics," he continued. "Inside the Bolshevik lines the situation is worse than the French reign of terror. Victims executed now must be counted by the ten of thousands. All half-splitting political reasons aside, the world must know that the Bolsheviks are no longer even a party, but are now merely a group of men determined to hold what they have seized by the merciless slaughter of those who oppose them."

"It is now only the question of putting down an evil. Persons escaping from Moscow, Petrograd and Volodogda and reaching here bring indisputable stories of the executions. The situation seems beyond the control of some Bolshevik leaders who themselves are revolting at the bloodshed."

President Tschaiikovsky said he recently cabled to President Wilson urging the immediate dispatch of more troops.

"Nothing can bring Russia out of this chaos until the Bolshevik terror has been quashed by the force of arms," said Tschaiikovsky. "The force now here is unable to do this quickly. Meanwhile hundreds are dying daily."

The world must understand that Bolshevism, like imperialism, is a foe to democracy. It is in Russia a mere dictatorship, a group of men holding sway by force of arms. They seize every straw, falsifying logic to justify themselves. As an example they now declare that the proposed league of nations is only another scheme to give power to the bourgeoisie against the working men."

"Perhaps the world will naturally ask what Russia is doing to help herself," said Tschaiikovsky, "and I can only answer that we are doing our best. A recent example is the reorganization of the government of the north. Now every party and every class is represented. Forgetting politics they are turning their efforts toward putting down the Bolshevik evil. We are mobilizing our forces but the allies must help."

President Tschaiikovsky is a Socialist.

Our hearts go out to those members of our order or others, whose loved ones have made the supreme sacrifice for human liberty, and who can mingle no more with us here, but who for all future time will be gratefully enshrined in the memory of every lover of liberty and justice wherever found.

We are proud of the part which our organization has played in the development of our state and in the establishment and maintenance of law and order throughout our jurisdiction.

Appreciating the distressing and unusual trials which have so recently afflicted our people, and from which they are not yet fully relieved we feel especially encouraged by the number, and by the enthusiasm and determination of those attending this meeting. We realize that during the past year the spirit of loyalty, and patriotic sacrifice which has so universally permeated our citizenship, supplemented by the vigilant and active efforts of our various councils of defense has relieved our organization of much of the work heretofore required of it, but realizing that the councils of defense will soon band us upon our membership everywhere the importance of reviving and perfecting the organization of every Sub Order within our jurisdiction, and we earnestly invite the good citizens of every community not now organized to join with us in perfecting such a chain of defense as will protect every worker in the
